ABOUT THIS COURSE

This Health & Safety training has been written for employers, managers and supervisors who have a responsibility for the health and safety of all personnel within their organisation.

The Health and Safety Training for Managers and Supervisors course is a concise and easy-to-follow guide, which leads health and safety managers through the necessary steps to health and safety at work and provides information on the different laws and legislation which apply to health and safety.

It is a core programme for people who may be new to health and safety and want to know what they have to do, but it's also excellent as a check-list for all health and safety managers, no matter how experienced.

Health and Safety within an organisation is not only about compliance - effective health and safety has many benefits, including safer, happier and healthier employees; a better company reputation; and a lower accident rate. It also helps reduce absences from work and helps to avoid serious accidents at work, so it's important to get it right.
